Iris Molotsky Award for Excellence in Coverage of Higher Education

Background

In 1970 the AAUP established a Higher Education Writers Award, which was presented for outstanding interpretive reporting on higher education. The award was presented annually until 1986, when its presentation was suspended. Because of AAUP's strong belief in the importance of providing the public regularly with reliable and informed information about higher education issues, the Association is again offering the award, renamed the Iris Molotsky Award for Excellence in Coverage of Higher Education. Ms Molotsky served as the AAUP's Director of Public Information for 19 years.

Objective

The purpose of the award is to recognize and stimulate coverage of higher education nationally and to encourage thoughtful and comprehensive reporting of higher education issues.

The AAUP Award is given for outstanding coverage of higher education exhibiting analytical and investigative reporting. Entries will be judged on the basis of their relevance to issues confronting higher education.

The winner will be selected by a panel of judges composed of journalists, faculty members, and administrators in journalism and communications. The winner will be recognized at a ceremony at the AAUP's Annual Meeting in June.

Guidelines

Entries for the AAUP award must have been published between January 1 and December 31 of the prior year. Entries must be postmarked no later than April 15. Entries may be single articles or a series, but editorials and columns will not be considered for the award.

Submissions may be made by media organizations or employees. Applicants may be self-nominating. Each application must be accompanied by an entry form.

A prior winner may submit an entry, but not within five years of receiving the award.
