Dorm check-in will be conducted by University of Cincinnati staff at the CRC Student Residence Hall located at 2820 Bearcat Way, Cincinnati, OH 45221. Each attendee will have a private bedroom furnished with a bed, a desk and a dresser, and a bathroom shared with one other Summer Institute guest. Bed sheets, a blanket, a pillow and pillow case, and towels will be provided to you when you arrive. Please remember to bring your own toiletries as these will not be provided. Dorm suites are air conditioned.

Registration:
Registration will be available: Wednesday- 3pm to 7pm (Main Street Cinema desk, Tangeman University Center); Thursday- 8am to 6pm (Main Street Cinema desk, Tangeman University Center); Friday- 9am to 12pm (Tangeman University Center Room 413). Tangeman University Center is located at 2701 Bearcat Way, Cincinnati, OH 45221.

Meals:
On-campus attendees will receive a meal card when they check into the residence hall. Commuter attendees should pick up their meal cards at the Summer Institute registration desk.

The following meals are included in your registration: lunch on Thursday, breakfast and lunch on Friday, and breakfast and lunch on Saturday. All meals will be served in the cafeteria located at the Market Pointe dining hall, 2580 Corbett Drive, Cincinnati, OH 45221. Sunday buffet breakfast is also included in the cost of registration as part of the closing session in the Tangeman University Center Great Hall.

There will also be an opening reception Thursday evening in the Tangeman University Center Great Hall. Hors d’oeuvres will be served and a cash bar will be available. Doors open at 6:00pm.
Workshops:
All of the workshop classrooms are located in either Tangeman University Center or Swift Hall. The institutional financial analysis workshops will be held in Clifton Court North. Workshop locations will be printed in the Summer Institute program included in this booklet. Many of our workshops are at full capacity. Please be respectful to presenters and other attendees by attending only the workshops you registered for. Please see the agenda in your registration envelope.

Coffee Breaks: Presenters will usually break for about 10 minutes halfway through their workshop sessions. Coffee, water, and tea will be available on the 4th floor of Tangeman University Center near the Summer Institute classrooms.

Optional Activities:
The three scheduled optional activities for Friday and Saturday require the purchase of a separate ticket. Please visit the Summer Institute registration desk if you are interested in attending one of these activities. Availability of tickets is limited. More information can be found in the Workshop Program below.

Campus Policies:
Possession of illegal substances is officially prohibited on campus. You can visit the University of Cincinnati State University website, or ask the CRC Hall front desk to review these policies.

Wifi Access:
Instructions for accessing the University of Cincinnati guest wireless network will be provided at Summer Institute registration.

Fitness Center:
Please see the Summer Institute registration desk for more information about purchasing a pass to the fitness center on campus.

Parking:
If you purchased a parking pass, it will be included in the materials you receive at registration. You may also purchase a parking pass on-site by visiting the Summer Institute registration desk.
Workshop Evaluations and SI Overall Evaluation:
Evaluations for each workshop will be handled through an online survey tool. During the Summer Institute, you will receive an email containing the information you need to access and complete the survey. Please complete an evaluation for each workshop you attend. At the end of the Summer Institute, you will receive a message with a link to the overall evaluation for the entire program. Please take the time to complete this survey as well. We use this information every year to make the Summer Institute a better experience for all attendees. Thank you!

THURSDAY AFTERNOON (3:00PM-6:00PM)

1A Build Community, Build Power: Transform Your Union and Seize the Future—Part 1* (TUC 427)

Deborah Herman, Pivot Consulting; Phoebe Reeves, University of Cincinnati

Are you scared that right-to-work is coming to your state? Already in a right-to-work state and struggling? Worried about finding the next generation of leaders and officers? Drowning in grievance paperwork and investigations? The threats to higher education, academic freedom, and collective bargaining are only going to intensify. What will you do?

Believe it or not, our unions can not only survive, but thrive in this environment. To do that, we must first learn to speak in the language of shared values and then build community around those shared values. This doesn’t mean abandoning bargaining or grievance work, but it does mean re-thinking where power comes from and how we organize to sign up new members, develop new leaders, and design campaigns for both short-term and long-term wins.

During this 3-day workshop, we will dig into these topics and practice specific tools that have proven key to building community and power. You’ll go home with a concrete plan for positive change in your Chapter. Because Chapter growth of this kind usually requires some level of culture shift, we require teams of three to commit to this workshop. (Exceptions will be made for small chapters who can send a team of two.) Teams must complete a pre-workshop survey.

*Recommended for those involved with collective bargaining

1B Using Digital Tools for Effective Organizing (TUC 400A)

Mariah Quinn, AAUP Digital Organizer; Josh Lenes, AAUP Lead Organizer

This workshop will focus on developing your own digital organizing plan, and using straightforward digital techniques to strengthen member outreach and communications. We'll discuss your chapter needs and objectives, and brainstorm strategies and solutions using readily available tools for emailing, social media outreach, petitions, legislative advocacy, and more. Interested participants will be invited to join follow-up trainings and webinars to grow the skill set explored in the workshop. Participants will be asked to fill out a preliminary survey to get a sense of the skill level and needs of the group.

1C Getting to the Table* (TUC 419)

Mike Mauer, Senior Labor Advisor

Bargaining a solid contract requires a good amount of work before the teams get anywhere near a table. This workshop will consist of an overview of the work needed to prepare for bargaining: identification of current and anticipated issues; research; setting priorities and determining realistic outcomes; proposal development; planning for organizing around bargaining issues; and devising a game plan for the eventual contract settlement.

*Recommended for those involved with collective bargaining

1D Non-Violent Direct Action: Campaign Strategy and Power Mapping (TUC 400C)

D. Pei Wu

What do you need to know to move from individual actions to running a powerful campaign? This 3-hour workshop will introduce key concepts used in training campaign organizers, including: points of intervention, targets, spectrum of allies, campaign strategy timeline, escalation, mobilizing, base building, and power mapping. We draw from the broad history of social movements, including anti-colonial, civil rights, student,
LGBTQ, independent living, Movement for Black Lives, environmental activism, anti-racist, youth organizing, and many others. This year we will focus on power mapping and power analysis, spectrum of allies, and campaign-related tools.

1E  Reading and Using the Redbook (TUC 400B)

Joerg Tiede, AAUP Department of Academic Freedom, Tenure, and Governance; Henry Reichman, California State University, East Bay

Central to the work of evaluating a faculty handbook is a thorough understanding of AAUP policies regarding academic freedom, tenure, and due process. The first half of the workshop provides an overview of the most central policy statements in these areas. But these principles are not just abstract concepts; they are incorporated in concrete ways in the official policies and procedures of each institution. The second half of the workshop provides an overview of how to evaluate a faculty handbook relative to AAUP-supported principles.

1F  Thinking about Leadership (part 1 of 3) (Swift 819)

Jim Bakken, AAUP Northwest Lead Organizer

Faculty don’t often consider themselves leaders, though they may occupy those roles within their institutions or unions. Strong leadership can help transform chapters into an effective and powerful voice for faculty. Participants will discuss what it means to be a leader in the higher education environment, and investigate ways to maximize leadership skills to build faculty power and grow their chapters.

1G  Faculty Support for Student Activism in the Age of #45 (Swift 820)

Emily Houh and Stephanie Sadre-Orafai, University of Cincinnati

In recent years, student activism on campuses across the country has been on the rise. Whether marching in alliance with Black Lives Matter, protesting university practices related to sexual assault and gender violence on campus, or organizing against policies being implemented by the current presidential and congressional regimes, students are demanding accountability and action from their universities. This interactive workshop will open with discussion— informed by our core value of academic freedom— about whether, why, and how faculty should and can support student activism in these especially difficult times, particularly on matters of race, gender, and sex equality and equity. The rest of the workshop will focus on the development of concrete strategies to help faculty who want to support student activism on different topics and in institutionally-specific ways. Specific issues to be explored will be generated in our initial discussion, and may include the following: appropriate faculty-student boundaries; differences on the left around the concept and rhetoric of “safe spaces”; critical pedagogy and the activist classroom; and how the AAUP’s policies on academic freedom inform (or don’t inform) our thinking on all of these matters.

1H Legal Update: A Tale of Two Administrations (TUC 415)

Aaron Nisenson, AAUP Senior Counsel; Risa Lieberwitz, AAUP General Counsel

This was a year when not much substantial or unusual happened . . . in the courts. However, the election of Donald Trump as President is a different matter. As a result of the change in administrations, and consequential appointments to the Supreme Court and federal agencies, there is the likelihood of substantial changes in several significant areas impacting faculty and collective bargaining in higher education. The rulings of the National Labor Relations Board favorable to unionization of faculty and graduate students in the private sector will be threatened, the constitutionality of agency fee in the public sector will again be under siege, and the interpretation and enforcement of Title IX and the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) will be modified. We will have an in-depth discussion of the legal and practical impacts of these developments and of recent decisions from the courts.

1I You Are the Union Officer You are Looking For* (TUC 417)

Lisa Minnick, Western Michigan University; John McNay, University of Cincinnati, Blue Ash

This workshop focuses on preparing new chapter leaders (and those considering leadership roles in the future) for the political and procedural realities of their offices. Topics include understanding the responsibilities of the chapter president as well as the limitations on what you can do in that role, making sense of the internal and external political landscapes in which you and your chapter operate, understanding and leveraging your chapter's internal governance structure, and building a culture of trust and mutual respect to work effectively with your cabinet and staff.

*Recommended for those involved with collective bargaining
THURSDAY EVENING (6:30-8:00PM)

Food and drink service begins at 6:00pm

Opening Reception (TUC Great Hall)

Join us for the Opening Reception of the 2017 Summer Institute. Besides good company, we’ll have hors d’oeuvres, a cash bar, and a look ahead to the excitement of the coming days.

FRIDAY MORNING (9:00AM-12:00PM)

2A  Build Community, Build Power: Transform Your Union and Seize the Future —Part 2* (TUC 427)

See description under Workshop 1A

2C  A Critical History of Money Management in Higher Education (TUC 400B)

Matthew Kurtz, Carleton University and REGI Consulting

This workshop is about financial ratios, the metrics that assess the monetary performance and position of an institution. Administrators have become spellbound by these ratios, which are an overlooked yet key component in the financialization of universities. The impacts of this captivation on the quality of instruction, total hours worked, and human capital development are profound: even at small colleges, millions of additional dollars get locked up every year— in dead money and volatile securities—in order to improve the school’s financial ratios.

This workshop engages in a critical genealogy of these hidden metrics. First, we will trace the emergence of financial ratios as a strange technology of governance, involving a history of technique, expertise, and mobilization over several decades. Second, we will review an example of financial ratio analysis at work, using material from the finance committee at one institution acquired through freedom of information requests. Third, participants will use public financial statements to estimate the value and trajectory of some financial ratios for their own institutions. The exercise will help us see what administrators see, which puts faculty in a better position to debate whether increasing these ratios should be the aim of the university’s agenda.
2D Non-Violent Direct Action: Direct Action and Action Planning  (TUC 400C)

D. Pei Wu

How can you plan more impactful, creative actions and spark people’s imaginations about the possibilities and promise of higher education? In this workshop, we will learn direct action planning, get some inspiration and ideas by looking across other experiences and movements, and apply these tools to our own situations. You will leave this workshop with a bountiful brainstorm of creative action ideas for the coming year and concrete tools.

2E Principles of Shared Governance (Swift 820)

Joerg Tiede, AAUP Department of Academic Freedom, Tenure, and Governance; Irene Mulvey, Fairfield University

AAUP policies on institutional governance consist of general principles to guide the conduct of governance at institutions of higher education. This workshop provides an overview of the AAUP’s main policy statement on governance, the Statement on Government of Colleges and Universities. Understanding the principles articulated in this statement will help to empower faculty by providing them with widely-accepted standards to which institutional practices can be compared, and with goals for the improvement of institutional practices.

2F Developing Effective Leadership Teams (part 2 of 3) (Swift 819)

Jim Bakken, AAUP Northwest Lead Organizer

Building a strong team of leaders is one of the best ways to start the process of creating effective chapters. We’ll examine how teams form, function, and succeed, and how being intentional about teamwork can positively impact the work the union does on campus.

2G Organizing Around AAUP Principles (TUC 400A)

Henry Reichman, California State University, East Bay; Jason Elias, AAUP Western Regional Coordinator

This workshop aims to give participants the skills they need to identify key issues addressed by AAUP policy and do the appropriate organizing work to win solutions.
What do faculty want to gain out of shared governance? How can an independent faculty voice through a well-organized AAUP chapter be a force for positive change on campus? By utilizing case studies and identifying best practices in organizing and shared governance, participants will leave with a strong vision for how to build strong faculty organizations on their own campuses.

2H Threats to Union Agency Fees and Other Challenges: How to Survive and Thrive* (TUC 417)

Aaron Nisenson, AAUP Senior Counsel; Lisa Minnick, Western Michigan University

Judicial and legislative threats to unions now abound, from challenges to agency fees, to limitations on the right to bargain, to attempts to outlaw dues checkoff. This session will provide an overview of potential threats, when they might be realized, and the legal and fiduciary obligations of union leaders to anticipate and address their impacts. We will also provide practical guidance on how chapters can build effective, member-led unions in the aftermath of these legal challenges.

*Recommended for those involved with collective bargaining

2I Civil Rights and Social Justice: How to Attract "Diverse" Faculty to Unions (TUC 415)

Yolanda Flores, University of Vermont; Kimberly King, California State University, Los Angeles

Would you like to bring more diverse faculty participants into your AAUP chapters and other faculty organizations? In this workshop, faculty will share their successful approaches and experiences bringing in educators of color and other underrepresented faculty as active members and leaders in their unions and faculty organizations. We will address working with both tenure-line and contingent faculty members. Strategies include including social justice-related campaigns in the work of the union and creating organizational structures that address issues of particular concern to under-represented faculty and their students. These strategies have led to increased faculty activism by attracting faculty activists committed to social justice and equity for students and faculty in public higher education. The workshop will provide hands-on exercises to assist attendees in developing ideas for reaching diverse faculty. We hope the workshop will result in the greater recruitment and ongoing participation of faculty activists and leaders from underrepresented backgrounds.
FRIDAY AFTERNOON (1:30PM-4:30PM)

3A Plenary Session: Pushing Back on the Power of Private Donors: Strategies for Building Your Chapter and Protecting AAUP Principles (TUC Great Hall)

Samantha Parsons and Ralph Wilson, UnKoch My Campus, Stephen Boyd, Wake Forest University; Hank Reichman, California State University, East Bay

Note: this is a plenary session that is open to all Summer Institute attendees. We'll mix lecture presentation and small group projects throughout the session.

This interactive workshop will highlight ways in which private university donors may violate academic freedom and shared governance through the terms and conditions of their philanthropy. We will use a case study of the Charles Koch Foundation to identify how some donors may buy influence over academia, bypass shared governance, and place inappropriately restrictive conditions on the use of funds. We will also share strategies for turning those violations into campaigns to protect AAUP policies, build local chapters, and resist externally imposed politicization of the academy. Attendees will learn how to research their university’s relationships with private donors, identify current policy failures, and integrate knowledge and research of donor overstep into a campaign that will empower faculty to take collective action on campus. The program will end with a presentation of model policies that can achieve transparency and faculty approval of all private donor agreements, meaning attendees will walk away with a tangible solution that can be organized around at all universities, even those without Koch funding. So that we might learn from one another throughout the session, we will encourage breakout groups and incorporate your ideas and experiences into the facilitation of the overall workshop. Due to the scale of this issue, we’ve made sure that this workshop space can accommodate the entire attendee body—everyone can join!

FRIDAY EVENING

Optional Activity #1: Brewery Bus Tour (6:00PM-10:30PM, Pickup in McMicken Circle)

Join your fellow attendees and experience Cincinnati’s long and rich tradition of beer brewing on the Cincy Brew Bus. Tour includes a ride to three breweries and samples of beer at each brewery visited, a Bavarian soft pretzel, and a tour behind the scenes. The tour will last between 3-4 hours and will be infused with local brewing history, beer education, trivia, prizes, fun facts and general knowledge from the trained tour guides and beeristas.

Tickets for the Cincy Brew Bus tour are $75. Please see the Summer Institute registration desk if you wish to purchase a ticket. Availability is limited.

Attendees will be picked up on campus at 6:00pm from McMicken Circle. After the tour ends, attendees will be dropped off on campus.

If you decide to stay in downtown Cincinnati after the tour ends, you are responsible for notifying our staff on the tour and for your own transportation back to campus/hotel.

Please arrive by 6:00pm at McMicken Circle for bus pickup.

Optional Activity #2: Dinner Cruise on the Ohio River (5:30PM-10:30PM, Pickup in McMicken Circle)

Join your fellow attendees for an evening filled to the brim with festive cuisine, entertainment, and live performance onboard the Belle of Cincinnati, a majestic, Victorian-inspired cruise ship. Each climate-controlled deck includes a full bar, dance floor and elevator for fun on every level. The upper deck is open-air, perfect for watching the scenery along the Ohio River sail by.

Tickets for the dinner cruise are $75. Please see the Summer Institute registration desk if you wish to purchase a ticket. Availability is limited.

Please note: Roundtrip transportation to the dinner cruise is included in the ticket price. Please arrive at McMicken Circle by 5:30pm. After the cruise ends, transportation back to campus will leave Newport Landing at 10:15pm. Attendees not on the bus returning to campus are responsible for their own transportation back to campus.

Please arrive by 5:30pm at McMicken Circle for bus pickup.

SATURDAY MORNING (9:00AM-12:00PM)

4A Build Community, Build Power: Transform Your Union and Seize the Future —Part 3* (TUC 427)

See description under Workshop 1A
4C Back to Basics: Office Visits 101 (TUC 400B)

Joshua Guy Lenes, AAUP Lead Organizer; Rebecca Mancuso, Bowling Green State University

Do your members say they feel awkward or uncomfortable approaching their colleagues about membership? How long has it been since your chapter has conducted a coordinated office visits program to recruit members?

From member recruitment to contract campaigns and strikes, one-on-one conversations through office visits are the building blocks of nearly all organizing campaigns. Shake off the rust and learn how a coordinated office visits program can recharge your chapter activities. This workshop will focus on the fundamentals of one-on-one conversations: the conversation structure, how to respond to common objections to membership, and the “dos and don’ts” of office visits. Participants will learn tips for overcoming discomfort, and will get ample hands-on practice with one-on-one conversations. Participants will also receive the tools your chapter needs to coordinate a campus-wide program for their chapters. Attendees of all levels of experience are welcome and encouraged to attend.

4D Advocating for Academic Freedom in an Age of Contingency (Swift 819)

Nick Fleisher, University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee; David Kociemba AAUP East Coast Organizer

How can adjunct faculty advocate for academic freedom protections? How can their tenure-line faculty colleagues stand up for them? Faculty who attend this workshop will learn about the actual working conditions of adjunct faculty through the AAUP’s 2017 investigation of a reprisal firing of an adjunct faculty leader in Colorado, discover the tools they need to research contingent faculty’s academic freedom on their campus and in the profession, and develop organizing strategies to effect change.

4E A Crash Course in Institutional Financial Analysis (Public Sector) (Clifton Court North N05)

Howard Bunsis, Eastern Michigan University; Rudy Fichtenbaum, Wright State University; Kenyal McGee, Central State University; Tom Rooney, Wright State University

This workshop will be presented in conjunction with a live webinar in early July (a recording will be available if you cannot participate on that date). The workshop is hands-on, and will be held in a computer lab. In this workshop, you will learn to analyze your public sector institution’s audited financial statements in order to understand its fiscal priorities and overall financial health. The webinar will be a lecture to teach participants to read financial statements properly by looking at actual expenses and revenues, assets and liabilities, and cash flow. During the workshop, participants will learn to conduct their own detailed institutional financial analyses using their respective institutions’ financial statements. Participants will present their findings to the class—great preparation for sharing your new skills with campus colleagues at the next chapter meeting!

4F UnKoch My Campus: Using Research and Messaging to Win (Swift 820)

Samantha Parsons and Ralph Wilson, UnKoch My Campus

As a continuation of Friday’s session, organizers from UnKoch My Campus will provide a more in-depth skill-building workshop on the research and messaging techniques needed to win a campaign on donor influence. During the first half of this workshop, we will discuss how to: uncover donor connections and influence at your university; use open records laws to your advantage; understand the role of university foundations; and identify policy gaps. The second half of the workshop will include a conversation about framing this issue to build your membership, engage larger audiences, and identify coalition partners. We will also discuss how to get your efforts covered by the media. In hopes of creating a co-learning environment, plenty of space will be made in this workshop to ask questions, expand on concerns, and brainstorm new ideas related to the corporatization of higher education.

4G Building Strategic Capacity: A Workshop on Contract Campaigns and Beyond—Part 1 of 2* (TUC 415)

Kira Schuman, AAUP Staff; Paul Davis, Cincinnati State Technical and Community College

This session is for activists who want to return home from the Summer Institute with a toolkit of creative and effective ways to structure a strategic contract campaign. Such a campaign will not only support your negotiating team at the table, but will also keep your members active, engaged, connected, and informed leading up to, and during, the bargaining process. We'll look at examples at what has worked, or not, on other campuses, and discuss creative ways to build STRATEGIC CAPACITY so that your members are ready to do whatever is needed during the bargaining process and beyond. Bring your energy and be prepared to think outside the box!

*Recommended for those involved with collective bargaining
4H  Labor Law 101: The Basics* (TUC 400A)

Mike Mauer, Senior Labor Advisor

This workshop gives an overview of how labor law—both private and public sector—governs labor-management relations. The material covers all phases of union activity following initial certification by a labor board: duty of fair representation; unfair labor practices; Weingarten rights; the good faith bargaining obligation (including the right to information); and the resolution of impasses in negotiations.

*Recommended for those involved with collective bargaining

4I  Make your Union Great Again: Building and Sustaining Relationships with Your Members* (TUC 400C)

Kaytee Canfield, URI-GAU; Danielle Dirocco, Executive Director, URI-GAU

Building and maintaining a strong union requires quality tools of the trade. This workshop will focus on building quality membership engagement opportunities within your union that are enjoyable, informative, and worthwhile.

Union membership extends beyond a signature on a membership card. A strong union requires consistent cultivation so members have numerous opportunities to get engaged and stay engaged for the long haul, whether that be through a seemingly endless contract campaign, an intransigent administration, or a political rollercoaster.

This workshop will focus on building quality membership engagement opportunities within your union that are enjoyable, informative, and worthwhile. Topics to be covered include quality member (re)orientation, social gatherings that are worth attending, and cultivating leadership from within.

*Recommended for those involved with collective bargaining
SATURDAY AFTERNOON (1:30PM-4:30PM)

5A  Grievance Arbitration: The End of the Line* (TUC 400A)

Mike Mauer, Senior Labor Advisor

This workshop will cover the basics of what happens at arbitration, the last and final resort when the parties cannot agree. Deepening attendees’ understanding of the arbitration process will enable chapter advocates to do a better job in processing grievances through the steps of the grievance procedure, and to assist with preparation of the case to be presented at hearing. The workshop also will cover the legal and political criteria for selecting which unresolved grievances should be taken to arbitration. And if your chapter is interested in exploring having non-lawyers present cases at arbitration hearings, this workshop can be the first step in your training process.

*Recommended for those involved with collective bargaining

5B  A Crash Course in Institutional Financial Analysis (Private Sector) (Clifton Court North N05)

Howard Bunsis, Eastern Michigan University; Rudy Fichtenbaum, Wright State University; Kenyal McGee, Central State University; Tom Rooney, Wright State University

This workshop will be presented in conjunction with a live webinar in early July (a recording will be available if you cannot participate on that date). The workshop is hands-on, and will be held in a computer lab. In this workshop, you will learn to analyze your private sector institution’s audited financial statements in order to understand its fiscal priorities and overall financial health. The webinar will be a lecture to teach participants to read financial statements properly by looking at actual expenses and revenues, assets and liabilities, and cash flow. During the workshop, participants will learn to conduct their own detailed institutional financial analyses using their respective institutions’ financial statements. Participants will present their findings to the class—great preparation for sharing your new skills with campus colleagues at the next chapter meeting!
5C Courageous Conversations: Teaching Race, Class, Gender, and Social Justice (Swift 820)

Katherine Morrison, Curry College

Research has shown that our global societies have been evolving and integrating with one another at an unprecedented pace. As such, in order to thrive in any career, students must learn how to work with individuals and communities who are different from themselves. However, many students are apprehensive learners when it comes to understanding and embracing the dissimilarities throughout the human mosaic. In this interactive session, we will explore the nuances of teaching about multiculturalism in the classroom. Participants will be guided through a self-reflection, offered strategies for facilitating difficult conversations, and provided with effective pedagogical strategies.

5D Non-Violent Direct Action: Cultural Work & Creative Interventions (TUC 415)

D. Pei Wu

How do art and cultural work support organizing and campaigning? In this workshop we will learn how to make better banners and signs, silkscreen, and play with other creative action toys and props. We will explore how creative actions and techniques are also useful as organizing and community building methods. You will leave this workshop with some signs and banners, a stencil, or a silkscreened item! Please bring your AAUP bag and a t-shirt, and wear clothes you can get dirty in.

5E Advancing Faculty Goals using Parliamentary Procedure (TUC 419)

Irene Mulvey, Fairfield University; Joerg Tiede, AAUP Department of Academic Freedom, Tenure, and Governance

In this workshop, we will provide strategies on how to advance the faculty's goals within the governance system at an institution. Specifically, we will cover the basics of parliamentary procedure and democratic decision-making for a group, and then illustrate how a working knowledge of these fundamentals can be used to help advance or derail a proposal.
Using Issue Organizing to Strengthen the Faculty Voice (part 3 of 3, also open to all attendees) (Swift 819)

Jim Bakken, AAUP Northwest Lead Organizer; Jason Elias AAUP Western Regional Coordinator

Issue organizing is essential to effective unions, whether they’re collective bargaining or advocacy chapters. Working with your colleagues to tackle issues allows them to experience collective power directly, and serves to build a culture of militancy that will impact the overall strength of the chapter. We’ll take an in-depth look at the process of planning and executing issue campaigns, including how to use the issue campaign to simultaneously build membership, activism, and structure for your chapter.

Building Strategic Capacity: A Workshop on Contract Campaigns and Beyond—Part 2 of 2* (TUC 417)

See description under Workshop 4G

Chapter Management: Running an Active and Effective Chapter* (TUC 400B)

Aaron Nisenson, AAUP Senior Counsel; Ron Jones, University of Cincinnati; Stephanie Spanja, UCAAUP Director of Contract Administration; Jeff Cramerding, AAUPUC Director of Contract Administration and Communications

This workshop provides practical advice on how to keep your chapter and membership, active, engaged, and out of legal trouble. We will discuss methods of communicating with members, best practices in running meetings of the membership and union board, and practical advice on chapter budgeting and finances. We will also provide guidance and tools for helping your chapter comply with its legal and fiduciary obligations, with an entertaining presentation on exciting issues such as keeping chapter minutes, maintaining chapter books, and complying with IRS and LMRDA reporting requirements (are you pumped yet?).

*Recommended for those involved with collective bargaining
Tracking and Responding to State Legislation (TUC 400C)

Sara Kilpatrick, OCAAUP Executive Director; John McNay, University of Cincinnati, Blue Ash

State legislatures across the country are attacking the professoriate and underfunding higher education. This interactive workshop will help participants learn how to: monitor legislation, respond to direct and indirect attacks on the profession, address funding needs while critiquing institutional spending, develop and advance a legislative agenda, engage members in the legislative process, and interact with the media.

SATURDAY EVENING

Soccer Match: Cincinnati FC vs. Rochester Rhinos

Join your fellow attendees and watch FC Cincinnati soccer team take on the Rochester Rhinos at Nippert Stadium. General admission tickets are $10 and can be purchased at the Nippert Stadium. No transportation is needed to get to the stadium as it is centrally located on campus—it’s right next to TUC and adjacent to the CRC residence hall.

Fun fact: FC Cincinnati has become one of the most supported soccer clubs in minor league soccer in the United States and fans display their support by painting Nippert in a shade of orange and blue attire.

SUNDAY MORNING (8:30AM-10:00AM)

Buffet breakfast service begins at 8:00am.

Creative Visibility on Your Campus (TUC Great Hall)

Put the finishing touches on your Summer Institute experience and have some fun creating visible signs of support for the AAUP and your chapter. Bring your creativity and your vision for making change on your campus.

After a quick review of successful and not so successful examples of “outward and visible signs of support,” participants will be grouped up to design a button that, when worn, could prompt interest from their colleagues, students, and other campus stakeholders. When you’re done, we’ll help you produce the button right there so you have one to take home and inspire your colleagues.

D. Pei Wu

D Pei Wu was born in New York City and grew up in a small Chinese community in adjacent Fairfield County. In addition to participating in the civil disobedience mass mobilizations of WTO civil society protests in Seattle (1999) and Hong Kong (2005), D’s first arrest was supporting hotel workers fighting for a living wage in Emeryville, CA.

D has co-authored several reports on youth organizing in environmental justice and played key roles in media & communications with delegations of youth, indigenous peoples, and women in international climate change treaty conventions. Their favorite campaigns have included fighting the evictions of Chinese and Vietnamese immigrant and refugee tenants in Oakland, CA; developing data books on environmental quality and community-stabilizing development with Filipino, Black, Asian, and Latino communities in San Francisco and West Oakland; and preventing the detention and deportation of local undocumented people. D’s dissertation examined the role of cultural organizing and healing in movements for transformative social justice.

D is on the Board of the Davis-Putter Scholarship Fund for scholar-activist-organizers and a proud associate member of their union, the American Association of University Professors. D lives with three dogs and roommates in a cute old house in southeast Portland, and speaks English, Spanish, passable Mandarin, and dwindling French and Portuguese.
CALL FOR PROPOSALS

Each Summer, the AAUP and the AAUP-CBC convene The Summer Institute—a four-day series of training workshops that focus on organizing skills, faculty advocacy, AAUP principles, and the issues confronting the profession today. As one of the premier programs of its kind, the Institute draws over 200 participants from around the country. Part of what makes each Summer Institute exciting is its unique location, because every year it takes place on a different campus in the United States. We are now looking for host campuses for the 2018 Summer Institute.

The site requirements for this event are:

- Air-conditioned sleeping accommodations for at least 200 attendees.
- Private sleeping quarters, semi-private bathrooms (no more than three guests per bathroom)
- Meeting accommodations for at least 8 concurrent workshops
- Weekday and weekend access to a computer classroom with at least 25 workstations
- Easy transportation to and from an airport

If you think your campus would make a good location for the Summer Institute, please let us know by contacting Christopher Simeone at csimeone@aaup.org OR pass this flyer along to the conference office on your campus.
Use the hashtag #AAUPSI in social media posts, including photos, during your time at the Summer Institute! Be sure to mention @AAUP & @AAUPCBC.
